Geo. F. Huffman was born in Easton, Wayne county, Ohio, July 8, 1853, was married to Jemima Barker March 8, 1855. She died June 26, 1885; to this union were born eight children, seven of whom are living, three sons and four daughters, one daughter died at the age of 6 years.

They moved onto a farm one mile west of Forest Hill and lived there about 20 years. April 23, 1905, he was married to Mrs. Rachel Whitman of Rittman, Ohio. They resided there until her death April 6, 1907, since then his home has been with his oldest daughter, Mrs. L. E. Camfield, where he died December 18, after an illness of four weeks. He united with the Disciples of Christ in 1860, and has kept his trust all these years. At his death he was 66 years, 5 months and 10 days old. Elder R. R. Cook of Chesaning fulfilled the promise made to the deceased months ago to officiate at his funeral if living. In talking with neighbors and friends, he had expressed his wishes regarding singers and other things and the male quartette fulfilled their part, Frank Randolph of Alma assisting them. Mr. Huffman loved him, and it was such a beautiful tribute when the teachers and pupils, in a body, came just before the funeral to take a last look at Grandpa Huffman.

DESERTED POET FOR EARL

Shakespeare's Lady Love Missed the Opportunity of Sharing in His Fame.

Shakespeare, writer of a hundred romances, had but one in his life, and that was an unhappy one. It was with a certain Mary Fitton, a lady in waiting to Queen Elizabeth, who, according to all accounts, must have been a most unworthy young miss. She was beautiful enough, with large black eyes and a wealth of black hair that framed a face of healthy pallor, and gave excuse for Shakespeare's reference to her as the "dark lady."

Shakespeare loved her with all his heart, and she returned his love for a little space, and then became attracted to the earl of Pembroke, Shakespeare's dearest friend and patron. Probably because she feared what the poet might say, she proceeded to lure him away from Shakespeare and the young writer sunk in gloom and despair. This was about the year 1601, and his sonnets written between 1598 and that date tell the story clear enough. However, lovers of the bard may have the satisfaction of knowing that the earl and the lady were caught in their amour, and she was dismissed from the court, while the earl was sent to the Tower of London. She was the daughter of Sir Edward Fitton, and at the time of her affair with the dramatist was 20 years old. She afterward married a mere army captain, and history promptly lost sight of her.

HAD LITTLE USE FOR BOOKS

Friend of Grover Cleveland Boasted That He Practiced Law "Entirely by Ear."

Grover Cleveland had a friend in his early days as a lawyer, and the friend was also a lawyer, although a lax one. Whenever it became necessary for him to use a decision bearing upon any case he lounged in Cleveland's office and casually wormed the desired information out of his friend's mental storehouse. Cleveland was not dull to appreciate the fact and resent the sponging. He resented it chiefly because his friend was capable of better things, and could, if spurred to it, get along quite well by himself.

One day the friend came in on his usual errand, and when Cleveland had heard the accustomed preliminaries to the pumping process, he told him plainly that the fount of information was closed, but said Cleveland to him: "There are my books and you are quite welcome to use them. You can read your own cases." The friend, who was an excitable man, retorted quickly: "See here, Grover Cleveland, I want you to understand that I don't read law. I practice entirely by ear, and you and your books can go to thunder."

Tough Angora Goats.
On a bleak little island in Mono lake, Cal., over a mile and a quarter above sea-level, and surrounded by America's loftiest mountains, the Sierra Nevada, is a herd of Angora goats, totalling about a thousand. The water of the lake is said to be poisonous, but on the island there is a large spring, which supplies the goats with all the water they need. For the most part the pasturage is merely rough scrub, and the winter climate decidedly trying.

In 1848 nine of the finest Angoras from the royal herd in Turkey were sent by the order of the then sultan as a present to Dr. James B. Davis, of South Carolina. They were the nucleus of the vast herds that now roam over America, totalling some 90,000. The animal is very hardy and practically immune from disease. It will thrive and prosper where sheep and cattle would starve to death.
